

Black Lives Matter Reading Challenge

I am doing my IB course this year and I was thinking of doing something to help the Black Lives Matter movement as part of my service project for the course.

I like to read and I love gaining insight and knowledge into things that interest me, so I decided to give myself a reading challenge. The aim of this challenge is to receive sponsorships from people to read one book a month.

For every book I read I will publish one full review of the book and what I learnt from it. This will not only help me to process what I read but also help make these books accessible to my peers and others and others who are interested in the movement, but perhaps don't know where to start.
